be on acid-base, or neutralization, titrations. They are called neutralization titrations because the acid reacts with the base to produce salt and water. The pH (a mea-sure of the solution ' s acidity or basicity) of the resulting solution would be neutral. At the equivalence point in an acid-base titration, the moles of H+ will equal the moles of OH-.

For acid-base titration, a modern lab will usually monitor titration with a pH meter which is interfaced to a computer, so that you will be able to plot the pH or other physical quantities versus the volume that is added. In this module, we simulate this experiment graphically without using chemicals. A program that simulates titrations of ...

2. Weak Acid against Strong Base: Let us consider the titration of acetic acid against NaOH. The titration shows the end point lies between pH 8 and 10. This is due to the hydrolysis of sodium acetate formed. Hence phenolphthalein is a suitable indicator as its pH range is 8-9.8. However, methyl orange is not suitable as its pH range is 3.1 to ...

The simplest acid-base reactions are those of a strong acid with a strong base. Table 4 shows data for the titration of a 25.0-mL sample of 0.100 M hydrochloric acid with 0.100 M sodium hydroxide. The values of the pH measured after successive additions of small amounts of NaOH are listed in the first column of this table, and are graphed in Figure 1, in a form that is called a titration curve.

14.7 Acid-Base Titrations – Chemistry

An acid-base titration is an experimental procedure used to determined the unknown concentration of an acid or base by precisely neutralizing it with an acid or base of known concentration. This lets us quantitatively analyze the concentration of the unknown solution. Acid-base titrations can also be used to quantify the purity of chemicals.

The titration in this lab took place between the strong acid HCl and the strong base, NaOH. In strong acid/strong base titrations, the equivalence point is found at a pH of 7.00. In titrations with a weak base and a strong acid, the pH will always be less than 7 at the equivalence point because the conjugate acid of the weak base lowers the pH.
